Public Hearing at Court House on Winne Bus Line

Commissioner Van Voorhis of Public Service Commission Will Sit Wednesday Morning at 10:30 O'clock—Winne Seeks to Operate Bus Line Over Abandoned Colonial Route.

Commissioner Van Voorhis of the state public service commission will hold a public hearing Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the court house on Wall street on the application of Howard C. Winne of Washington avenue to operate a seven cent fare bus line over the abandoned Colonial Division of the trolley road, and also in sections of the Second and Third wards of the city.

Council Granted Consent.

The common council after a public hearing at the city hall granted Mr. Winne permission to apply to the public service commission for a certificate of public convenience and necessity. The common council also circulated petitions addressed to the public service commission asking that the required certificate be granted to Mr. Winne.

These petitions were signed by about four thousand residents of the city and were filed with the public service commission at the same time that Mr. Winne filed his application at Albany.

Many To Attend.

It is expected that many witnesses will be called by Attorney Floyd W. Powell, attorney for Mr. Winne to prove his contention that a bus line is needed over the route he proposes to operate. Under Mr. Winne's application he will charge a fare of 7 cents and will sell books of tickets at the rate of a five cent fare.

STRANGE BATTLE OF LOVE AND DEATH.

Newton, Mass., Dec. 12.—Love and death continued their strange battle today at the bedside of Mrs. Eunice J. Eston, 75, a widow.

In his pocket was a marriage license. Mrs. Eston expressed a desire to be be married to brighten her last hours. When Blood returned from the city clerk's office with the license Mrs. Eston was unconscious and has remained so since.

Blood has remained constantly at the bedside, hoping against hope that Mrs. Eston will rally, that they may be married before she passes to the great beyond.

Mellie's Waltz Best, Says Ford

Henry Ford Dances With Grandma Dunham at His Old Fashioned Party—Fiddler Silent on Vaudeville and Phonograph Offer.

Detroit, Dec. 12.—Mellie Dunham's cup of joy is full today. Last night he "had the time of his life," playing some almost forgotten ball room fancies at Henry Ford's old fashioned dancing party while the motor king, grinning like a school boy, danced with Grandma Dunham.

Mellie was playing his own composition, "Rippling Waves."

"That's the best waltz that's ever been brought around here," Ford said. "I don't care what anybody says."

The old fiddler was leading the Ford orchestra, artists all. His face was pink with the exertion of his fiddling but he was the conductor and he never lost his poise. Mellie, who is the champion fiddler of the state of Maine, wore a different shirt for the occasion. It was a blue gray near-silk garment. Previously Mellie has always worn a tan flannel shirt, with suspenders. Last night he wore a belt.

A Change of Shirt.

Ford was one of the first to notice the new raiment. "Why did you change the shirt?" asked Ford.

"My wife insisted on it," Mellie explained.

"Oh, well," laughed the automobile manufacturer, "that's reason enough."

Mellie, however, did not wear a necktie and his collar was open at the throat.

The party was held in a corner of Ford's laboratory at Dearborn.

Mellie's waltz was encored twice.

"Are you having a good time?" Mellie was asked.

"Fine," Mellie chuckled. "The time of my life. Only I'm eating too much. They are feeding us too well. Oh, yes, I got a telegram from Fred Sanborn today and he says the dogs and geese on the place haven't missed us yet."

Ford Dances With "Gram."

For the Dunhams the success of the party was crowned perhaps when Ford stepped up and asked a little old woman in a pretty gingham dress to dance. It was Mrs. Dunham, "Gram" as her husband calls her. Mel. pridetul eyes on the pair, seemed to put more depth into the broad tone of his fiddle as the man of millions danced with the little woman from way down East.

Then Professor Benjamin B. Lovett, Ford's instructor in the old fashioned dancing, "cut in" on his boss and took Gram away.

There were all sorts and conditions of folks at Ford's party. There were executives from his plants, famous physicians and Episcopal clergymen, school teachers, nurses, neighbors of Ford's and workmen from the Ford factories.

Not Going Home, Says Ford.

Mellie is not going home yet, Ford said. "They're not going home," Ford said, "until my orchestra learns to play that waltz of his as well as he plays it. It is the best waltz I ever heard."

Mel refused to say what he is going to do about vaudeville and phonograph offers.

"But if you did accept what would you do with the money," his questioner persisted. "Well," said Mel slowly, "I'd certainly fix up the barn so the cows wouldn't freeze to death and I'd sure take care of my grandchildren."

And of the grandchildren there are plenty, nine girls and three boys whose mother died when the youngest of them was born.

U. S. Investments Abroad Increase

Washington, Dec. 12.—American investments abroad have jumped to $11,250,000,000 in 1925, according to estimates made today by government economists.

The country will go into 1926 with over $10,000,000,000 in foreign fields, which means an income returning to the United of over $600,000,000 every year.

In spite of the government's prohibition this year against the flow of capital to nations which have not funded their debt, and objections put in the way of so-called unproductive foreign loans, flotations to finance foreign enterprise amounted to $1,000,000,000.

All Post Offices Close Xmas Day

Post Office Department Therefore Urges Everyone to Do Christmas Shopping and Christmas Mailing as Early as Possible.

If Postmaster General New has his way about it, Christmas Day this year is going to be the biggest and the best for all the employes of the postal service and especially for the eved-faithful letter carriers.

He has issued orders to postmasters throughout the country that their office will be closed all day Christmas except for the dispatch of special delivery letters and parcels and special handling letters and parcels.

In order that the vast army of carriers and clerks many enjoy Christmas Day to the fullest extent with their families and friends, the cooperation of every man, woman and child in the United States will be necessary.

Under the leadership of the Postmaster General, a campaign is now under way throughout the country to instill into the minds of everybody the necessity for shopping and mailing early in order that there will be as little congestion at the post offices as possible during Christmas week and in order that both the sender and receiver of gifts and remembrances may reap the happiness that is contemplated by such an exchange of presents.

Once more the post office department urges the American public to do its Christmas shopping and mailing early. If the shopping is done now the buyer gets just what he or she wants and if the gift is mailed before December 15 it is sure to reach its destination in plenty of time before Christmas Day.

Shoots Daughter, Believed Burglar

Jersey City, N. J., Dec. 12.—Nine year old Rose Carene, walking in her sleep early today, was shot and seriously wounded by her father, Anthony, who mistook her for a burglar.

Rose is in the city hospital, the roof of her mouth torn away and three teeth missing from her lower jaw. Physicians said the girl had shown considerable improvement and was expected to recover.

The father was awakened by the sound of the outside door closing as the little girl passed into the outside hall. Thinking a burglar was trying to make an entrance, he took a revolver from under his pillow and waited in the darkness for "the burglar" to make another sound.

Rose had in the meantime mounted the stairs to the apartment above occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Sorrentino. Mrs. Sorrentino awakened the child and would have led her into the apartment out Rose shook her head fretfully saying she was "going back to my bed."

The father, standing in the darkness, heard the door swing open and fired blindly into the dark. Rose crumpled in a heap at his feet.

Police arrested Carene, who was to be arraigned later today.

Those presenting children to this clinic are advised as to how the child can be benefited. All children should be accompanied by someone who can give the examiner a good history of the child's development and habits.

Anderson Has A New Name And New Issue

Deposed Head of Anti-Saloon League Organizes "American Protestant Alliance" to Prevent Americans From Receiving Foreign Decorations and Honors.

Washington, Dec. 12.—William H. Anderson, who was deposed as head of the Anti-Saloon League in New York, announced today a new name for the rival organization he organized some months ago, and a brand new issue.

The new name selected for his movement is the "American Protestant Alliance," and the new issue is a constitutional amendment to prevent Americans from receiving foreign decorations or honors.

Diligent search of historical records has revealed to Anderson that there was introduced and passed in 1810 by both houses of congress a proposed amendment to the constitution providing that. "If any citizens of the United States shall accept, claim, receive or retain any title of nobility or honor, or shall, without the consent of Congress, accept and retain any present, pension, office or emolument of any kind from any emperor, king, prince or foreign power, such person shall cease to be a citizen of the United States and shall be incapable of holding any office of trust or profit under them or either of them."

Senator Reed of Maryland, was the father of this proposal, and as an amendment to the constitution it was ratified by twelve states, Maryland, Kentucky, Ohio, Delaware, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Vermont, Tennessee, Georgia, North Carolina, Massachusetts and New Hampshire, and then apparently dropped and lost sight of.

Anderson considers that this applies to many of the foreign decorations and titles conferred upon American citizens during the war, such as "Chevalier of the French Legion of Honor," etc.

It will be the effort of his new organization, he said, to push ratification by the remaining states necessary to put the improviso into the constitution.

In addition, he said, this alliance will take up prohibition enforcement where the Anti-Saloon League "dropped it."

Protests Over Train Shelling

Pekin, Dec. 12.—Strong protests have been made to the Chinese government as the result of the shelling of an international train at Yangtsun yesterday. There were nine British, two Americans and four League of Nations commissioners on the train when it was shelled. No one was injured.

General Feng is reported now to have occupied Yangtsun and it was during a vigorous battle for possession of the city that the international train was shelled. There is some doubt as to whether the artillery was directed against the train, or whether the train ran into the line of fire of the Chinese gunners. It has been reported that the Chinese artillerymen directed their fire against the train, fearing that it was a ruse to cover the bringing up of additional enemy artillery.

Women and children in the train were thrown into panic by the bursting of shells around them, and crouched in the carriages in great fright during the bombardment.

The train was bound for Tientsin but there is no chance of its being able to continue its journey there as that city is cut off from communication with Pekin. It is believed that many of the passengers are making their way back to Pekin.

SEVERAL CASES BEFORE SCHIRICK IN COURT

Harry Thompson of 202 Fair street, arrested on complaint of Walter Hungerford of New Paltz, who charged Thompson with assault in the third degree, had his case adjourned this morning by consent to Wednesday morning.

Abe Serota, arrested for cutting to the left of a traffic standard, was fined $5.

John Corkery of Sawkill, arrested for public intoxication, on his promise to keep sober for two years, was discharged with a suspended sentence.

Victor Danek of Newburgh came to Kingston on Friday to see his folks and half an hour later was arrested for being intoxicated. He agreed to take the pledge for two years and was discharged with a suspended sentence.

JOSEPH BERRY DIES OF FRACTURED SKULL.

Columbus, O., Dec. 12.—Joseph Berry, who with his wife, Emma, was murderously assaulted by an assassin who fractured their skulls with an axe as they lay sleeping, died today.

Police are continuing their search for the unidentified murderer. Mrs. Berry told police the murderer is a negro. She said he first attacked her husband and then threatened to kill her. She remembered nothing, she said, after she screamed.

Officers working on the case had been unable to assign any motive for the crime other than that of robbery.

Last Chance for Erring Klansmen

"Doc" Whaley Will Be There to Greet Each Brother Who Now Wants His Sheet and Pillow Case Returned.

While the lamp holds out to burn
The rebel Klansmen may return.

And the lamp will burn brightly at Alligerville on the night of Thursday, December 17, when a Klounty Klonclave will be held at which Grand Dragon Smith, who is now officiating also as Great Titan at Troy, will bring a message as representative of the Imperial Wizard. The message is especially addressed to the mutinous element in Ulster county who have formed independent organizations, sung "Kleagle Whaley you must go," tried to get somebody to take the Rev. Dr. Whaley's gun away from him and otherwise sinned grievously against the sacred tenets of the Imperial Empire. All rebels are cordially invited to attend and be set right.

This is probably their last chance, as many of them have been officially notified that they are under suspension and unless they repent and make amends will be "banished from the Invisible Empire," which banishment means that no good Klansman may have any relations with them in future on pain of suspension and ultimate banishment himself. These notices, being written "on the doleful day of the wailing month in the frightful year," are very impressive and are expected to bring the sinners scampering back into the fold when they will once more be under the protection of Deputy Sheriff and Kleagle Whaley and his deputy shrieval gun and body guards and their guns, restored to the condition described in the sixth and seventh chapters of the Book of Revelation.

Shea Was Struck Twice With Ax

Only Evidence Against Enright is Circumstantial—Enright Insists He Knows Nothing of the Death.

Corning, N. Y., Dec. 12.—Coroner W. S. Cobb, of Steuben county gave a verdict today that Timothy Shea of Addison, in connection with whose death Michael J. Enright, brother of Police Commissioner Enright, is held, died from concussion of the brain and hemorrhages.

Enright is awaiting arraignment before Justice of the Peace L. W. Wellington of Gibson. A formal charge of murder, first degree, will be made against him.

District Attorney Guy W. Cheney says that so far the only evidence against Enright is circumstantial. Blood spots on Enright's clothing and the finding of the blood covered axe in the rear of the house on Commissioner Enright's farm, constitutes the buk of the evidence, Mr. Cheney said.

The autopsy reveals that Shea had been struck twice with an axe, once on the top of the head and the second which cut a gash over his left eye.

Enright insists he knows nothing about the death of Shea, and says he woke up in the morning to find him dead alongside the road.

Help Hospital Get Xmas Wreaths

Holly wreaths and Christmas greens make the holiday season more bearable to the sick in the hospitals. Even on the outside of the entrance, fir trees and evergreens lift the heart of the unfortunate one who enters the hospital just as the holidays are commencing.

The auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital wants to decorate the building, inside and out, next week. Who wants to help make this time less irksome to the sick?

Every bit of cash given now will be used to bring Christmas cheer to the patients. Those interested are asked to send their bit, no matter how small, to Mrs. C. B. Hasbrouck, treasurer, Stuyvesant street, but be sure to make out your check to the order of the Auxiliary of the Kingston City Hospital.

Resists Negro, Is Murdered

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 11.—More than 100 officers and citizens were engaged in a manhunt here today for a negro who murdered Mrs. Lena Blevins, 28, when the woman resisted the negro's attempt to assault her. Lynching is feared.

According to the story told by Mrs. Blevins before her death, she was passing a clump of bushes when the negro stepped from cover, levelled a shotgun at her and ordered her to accompany him into the woods. She screamed and the negro fired, wounding her so seriously that she died a few hours later.

Thieves Stole City Home Inmates' Xmas Dinner

Through Quick Work of Police Department Two Men Are Arrested Who Sold Stolen Chickens to Local Butchers—Both Plead Guilty and Are Sentenced to Albany Penitentiary.

This morning early when Saul Smith, farmer at the City Home on Flatbush avenue, went out to feed the flock of chickens, it was to find that one of the coops containing about sixty-two barred rock roosters that were being fattened for the Christmas and New Year's dinners for the inmates of the City Home had been broken into and not a rooster was left. An attempt had also been made to break into the other coop which housed two hundred fowls, but it had proven unsuccessful.

Reported to Police.

Superintendent Thomas H. Edmonston as soon as he heard of the robbery called up the police department and notified them of the theft, and Sergeant Charles Phinney immediately sent out a general alarm to all of the policemen on duty asking them to get in touch with all of the meat markets in the city. In the meantime the sergeant and Policeman Harold Bowser in the police car also started to search for the thieves.

Drove Over 60 Miles.

In the brief period of two hours the sergeant and officer traveled over sixty miles in the police car, visiting various butcher shops and making inquiries.

Get Trace of Chickens.

Finally at the store of A. D. Rose on Franklin street they learned that the store had purchased $39 worth of chickens from two men who had driven up to the store in a buckboard wagon to which was hitched a bay horse. They also learned that the men had sold some chickens to Ray, the butcher, whose shop is near the Rose store.

Searching for Men.

Then the search was on in earnest and the police car travelled through the outskirts of the city and as far out as Bloomington and also in the Brickyard section, and it was finally while driving out Albany avenue that a wagon was overhauled in which were two men answering the description of those who sold the roosters.

Stopped and Searched.

The police car drew up alongside the wagon which was jogging along the road at a slow pace and the sergeant ordered the men to halt. They did so and were searched by the sergeant who recovered about $50 in cash from both men.

"Bought of Another Man."

Both men entered strenuous pleas of not guilty and informed the police that they had not stolen the chickens but that they had bought them of another man, but were unable to furnish his name or description.

Both Are Identified.

Both men, who said their names were George Smith and Harry Moore, and that they lived in East Kingston, were taken to Ray's shop and the Rose store where they were identified as the men who had sold the roosters.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

Later they were both arraigned before Judge Harry E. Schirick in police court where they entered a plea of not guilty and said they desired to obtain a lawyer. Still later while awaiting conveyance to the county jail they informed the police that they desired to change their pleas and were taken back into police court.

Then Pleaded Guilty.

They informed Judge Schirick they desired to withdraw their former pleas and to plead guilty to the charge of petit larceny. The pleas were accepted by the judge who sentenced them to 180 days each in the Albany Penitentiary and fined them each $50.

Police Hold Rig.

The horse and buckboard wagon were placed in Elmer Palen's livery by the police. The men claim they own the outfit and it will likely be turned over to their relatives, if have any.

Did Not Lack Boldness.

The two men did not lack for boldness, for after breaking into the chicken coop and placing the roosters in bags they drove into Kingston and along Broadway, stopping at a number of butcher shops where they attempted to dispose of the chickens.

All Were Recovered.

All of the stolen roosters were recovered by the police and turned over to the City Home. At the Rose store a few had been killed but they also were turned over.

Police Saved Dinner.

Superintendent Edmonston stated that the roosters were being fattened for the holiday dinners to be served the inmates at the City Home and he was loud in his praise of the work of the police department in recovering the roosters and arresting the thieves.

When Washington Hung the Paper

Tradition Says Father of His Country and Lafayette Finished Job of Pre-Volstead Paperhanger—Anyway, Paper of Same Design Now Ornaments Kingston Home.

Frank P. Messinger, painting and interior decorating contractor, has had a force of men engaged during the past few days at the magnificent colonial home of Mrs. Elsie Knauth of 322 Albany avenue where he is hanging perhaps the most famous wall paper design in existence. Mrs. Knauth's home is a model of colonial architecture and is furnished throughout in colonial style. Some time ago she learned that there was in existence a few rolls of wall paper such as was used by George Washington at his home in Mt. Vernon. She asked Mr. Messinger if it was possible to secure enough of this paper to hang on the walls of her hall, which is colonial in architecture and furnishings.

Used In Mt. Vernon Hallway.

Application was made to the Ladies' Association of Mt. Vernon, which has charge of the Washington mansion at Mt. Vernon, and permission was secured to use the paper in the Knauth home, its use being controlled by the Association which has had copies of the paper made from time to time as visitors damage the paper in the hallway at Mt. Vernon and its replacement has become necessary. Twenty-eight rolls of the paper were secured at considerable cost and are now being hung at the Knauth home.

Finished Paperhanger's Job.

As the story goes, and it is said to be true, on the return of Lafayette to America a reception was planned by George Washington at his home in Mt. Vernon in honor of Lafayette. In preparing for the reception it was deemed necessary to have the hallway at Mt. Vernon repapered. The paper was secured and a paperhanger was hired to do the job but at that time there was no Volstead law in effect and the paperhanger left at a most critical time and failed to return and complete his work.

The day before the reception arrived and the hall was uncompleted so it is said the night before the reception George Washington and Lafayette turned paperhangers and finished the job in time for the reception next day. It is the design of the paper they are said to have hung which is still used on the hallway at Mt. Vernon.

Costly To Manufacture.

From time to time as tourists deface the paper it becomes necessary to replace it. The same design is used and the Association which has charge of the mansion has secured The Robert Graves Company of New York to reproduce the design from time to time. The paper is made from hand blocks in five shades of gray, making necessary five distinct operations in the manufacture.

Last year the hall-way at Mt. Vernon was repapered with this paper and there was some left over. It was some of this surplus which Mr. Messinger secured for Mrs. Knauth.

The paper is printed in five shades of gray and is colonial in design. There are but two figures on the paper. One shows a shepherdess with a flock of sheep and the other design shows an old mill with water wheel.

Delay Efforts On French Debt

Paris, Dec. 12.—French efforts to reach a debt settlement with the United States will be delayed until the new year.

Ambassador Designate Berenger, who had planned to sail for the United States on December 16, announced today that he has deferred his sailing until January.

A luncheon was given in honor of Senator Berenger today, when the importance of his mission, which is primarily for the purpose of reaching a debt settlement, was stressed.

M. Berenger goes to Washington with the idea of being able to sign a debt agreement which is satisfactory to both France and America," said Finance Minister Loucheur in a speech.

Ambassador Designate Berenger said that the "debt question is bound up intimately with the spirit of the Locarno treaties and is dependent upon the Locarno pacts."

GHASTLY RITES OF VOODOO AT GATES OF PARIS

Sacrifice to Serpent Made by Blacks Described by Frenchman.

The other day Marcel Nedaud, the well-known authority on French agriculture and economy and a pioneer in aviation war fiction, told in Le Petit Journal of a voodoo gathering near Paris which he attended as a favored spectator. He said:

"All the transplanted African races were represented. A pure negro sat next to a quadroon; not far from them was a Congolese woman, holding a whimpering baby in her arms. Welling up from them all was an atmosphere heavy with animality, of morbid and uprooted human beings who had broken all ties with nature and were attached to their native soil only by the bond of a criminal mystery.

"Gradually the agglomeration took shape. A circle formed in the clearing. Two men brought in a sort of cage, which they placed near the center and put some burning sticks to one side of it.

Beginning of Ceremony.

"A gong sounded near me. The circle closed in. The blacks now knelt instead of squatting. A tall old man, clothed in a white mantle, beneath which his polished shoes could be seen, stationed himself between the cage and the fire. He stood motionless for some minutes, his white locks in striking contrast with his dusky face.

He Intoned a Vague Rhythm.

Then he intoned a vague rhythm, interrupted by various bust contortions.

"With arms extended in supplication and heads lifted imploringly, the listeners repeated at intervals the old man's litanies.

"The priest turned to the priestesses. They held out to him little children, whose eyes now rolled with fright.

"The priestesses seemed to implore the high priest to choose among their sons. He selected one boy, and placed him before the cage. In the child's arms he put a very small kid, which was bleating. An assistant brought in a tub, already half-full of a brownish liquid.

Promise of Rum to Come.

"'Rum,' my companion murmured. He was already licking his lips.

"There was a last invocation, followed by a series of whistlings. A big serpent came out of the cage. A drum was beaten near him.

"The old man straightened up and brandished a knife over the child's head. I was about to make an outcry. The blade, glittering in the rays from the fire, sank into the kid's throat. The blood dripped in the tub. A deep rattle rose from a hundred unmuzzled breasts.

"The knife descended from the throat to the chest, which it tore open. The priest seized the heart, which he stuck on a long needle and offered to the moon. He threw the liver to the serpent, which slowly swallowed it.

"'His majesty the devil is satisfied,' my neighbor clucked.

The circle broke up and rushed for the bucket. Black faces plunged into it and reappeared coated with blood and alcohol. Then they began to dance. Under the impassive moon it seemed to excite all the latent savage instincts of the hot countries. Sometimes a dancer fell down exhausted. The others kicked him with their feet, invoking the satan-king, the ancient serpent, who, satiated with food, dancing and cries, no longer extended from his cage anything but his little head, watching with cold eyes the leaps and bounds of his faithful from beyond the seas—the initiates of Gobi, the Voodoists.

"And all this happened in May, 1925, less than ten kilometers away from Paris."

Death Follows Dare

MIXTURE OF SECTS PUZZLE IN INDIA

Buddhists Put Up Problem in Government.

To most people it would appear, according to a Bombay paper, very natural that the famous temple of Budh Gaya, the most sacred spot in all the world to the Buddhist, should be under their control.

But it is not, and in recent years the Buddhist community has been carrying on an agitation which has for its object the persuading of the government to give them the right to manage the temple in the interests of their faith.

Is there, in India, any temple which has associations with so many faiths as this beautiful structure in Gaya? The original building, not the present one, for this is of a comparatively modern period, was built over the place made sacred by the great teacher Buddha, who here received that enlightenment which was the basis of his future teaching, and today Buddhists come from all parts of the world to pay their homage at this shrine. There is something very impressive in the sight of some pious Buddhist who has made a journey of thousands of miles, along difficult roads, to rest his eyes on this sacred spot, every inch of which has been honored by the presence of the Buddha.

But what is found when one passes inside the temple of Buddha? Here is an image, but strange to say, it bears the "trident" mark, the emblem of Vishnu, and even more strange, the rites are performed by a Brahmin. Could anything be more incongruous? The pious Buddhist pilgrim places reverently his pieces of gold leaf on the carved image of his Lord, but he must pay in his gift to the Brahmin priest who officiates. Nor is this all, for it is found that the Mahant or guardian of the Buddhist "Holy of Holies" is a Mohammedan, and he can easily show his right to the post.

How? By reference to a sanad granted to him by a "Christian" government. Thus, these four faiths are associated in this central shrine of Buddhism, and it is not surprising that Buddhists resent the ownership being in the hands of others. The British government will doubtless give due consideration to the petitions which have been sent by representative Buddhist bodies.—Montreal Family Herald.

The War Debts

The late Col. Frank H. Ray, organizer of the American Tobacco company, often used to laugh over the things Europe said and did about her war debts.

"Europe," he once observed to a New York correspondent, "reminds me irresistibly of the young man at the seaside.

"Lolling on the sand under a parasol with a pretty girl, this young man murmured softly:

"'Gee, but I wish I had enough money to marry.'"

"The girl blushed. Then with lowered lids she said:

"'What would you do if you had?'

"'Travel.'"

Taxing Bachelors

The tax on bachelors recently imposed by the Irish Free State, recalls the fact that William III, to raise money for the war with France, imposed a tax, which remained operative in this country from 1695 till 1706, making every unmarried man pay for his freedom in accordance with his social status. The impost graded down from £12 10s. per annum in the case of dukes and archbishops to 6s. for gentlemen, esquires, and doctors, and 3s. for "other persons."

Close Shave for D'Annunzio

Shorn of his famous Van Dyke and his head as hairless as a billiard ball, Gabrielle D'Annunzio posed on the throne of his villa at Gardone, Italy. "I sing only of the powerful" is the translation of the inscription at the base of the throne.

Comfy Raccoon Coat Is Liked by Little Girls

One of the popular models in raccoon to keep the little daughter warm during the blustery days of winter. It has pockets and large roll collar, and is lined with a warm material, making a most satisfactory garment.

Outstanding Novelties of Season's New Modes

The Parisian mode is not nearly so capricious as it is supposed to be. A new fashion is rarely a mere arbitrary change for the sake of changing. It is far more often a logical development, and it is when a novelty is logical that it stands the best chance of acceptance. This year the outstanding novelties of the winter collection might be briefly described as the flare, the fit and the bustle. The first has been on the way for a long time, winning another yard each season, until only the field of the outdoor wrap is left for it to conquer. Fitted bodice lines, also, are no caprice of Dame Fashion. Flaring skirts have brought them as surely as the short skirt brought little hats or God made little apples. Their chance of success is not so good as that of flaring skirts. Too many other things come into consideration, beginning with the undoubted power of sports influence on all our clothes. Nevertheless, though we may be as far this year as last from that extraordinary contraption of many curved sections that used to be called the waist of a gown, it is undoubtedly true that formless, not to say sloppy, lines are no longer in general wear. The "corset figure" is not an immediate danger, but a certain trimness of this part of the garment will get itself accepted as a distinguishing mark of the fashions of 1925-26.

And if this suggestion of snugness adds a spice of restraint to what the French call tenue, or general behavior, perhaps it will be all the better. Loose manners are less becoming than loose clothes. It is Charlotte of Premet who has gone the farthest in this direction. Some of her models are oddly reminiscent of the late '70s or earliest '80s, that period beloved by George Du Maurier, who delighted in six-foot, slender-limbed goddesses with pure Greek noses and equally pure English minds.—Harper's Bazaar.

Extreme Daintiness for Milady's Bedroom Only

It is given to every woman to love soft color, frills, quiet luxury. Some crave dainty, feminine surroundings in their homes more than others. Some will work hard against odds to achieve the coveted effects. And some, in truth, will work a little too hard, making their bedrooms fairly drip "sweetness" and their living and dining rooms, even, express frivolous ideas.

The place for extreme daintiness is in the bedroom—only. Here ruffly spreads and pretty little pillows, flower-colored lamps and softly tinted pictures will be in good order, and if you confine your hankering for "fluff" entirely to your boudoir, no one will have the right to criticize. Of course you will know when enough is enough. Avoid the sugary pink bonbon effect.

If you are settled on the point that your hangings and bedcoverings shall be of silk and your lamps decidedly decorative, your wisest step would be to purchase, not ornate furniture, but something refined and delicate in line and color.

Silver and Gold Kid Trim Hats

As new as they are interesting are hats of velours in the bright smart colors so much in vogue this season. In the front of the crown the material is cut away to form a butterfly and shows a facing of gold or silver kid.

Separate Sleeves

To remodel an old dress or to adapt a short-sleeved model for winter wear, here are smart sleeves of lace or chiffon gathered into a tight wristband and trimmed with bands of chiffon in varied colors, or ribbon.

Arc Light Fell On Taxi's Roof

Chauffeur LeRoy Schmidt Hears Crash, Finds Street Plunged in Darkness, Stops Taxicab and Finds Unwelcome Passenger on Roof.

Chauffeur LeRoy Schmidt, who guides one of the Fox taxicabs, has carried all sorts of passengers during his career at the wheel but Friday evening's passenger "takes the cake," as young folks are wont to say, for as he was driving through West Chester street that evening after discharging a passenger, there was a terrific crash followed by profound darkness.

According to police report, stopping his taxi, to find that an arc light that had hung in the center of the street had broken loose and fallen onto the top of his taxicaap, dragging with it the heavily charged electric wires.

The top of the taxi was badly damaged as well as the windows of the car, but fortunately Schmidt escaped injury. The police department were notified and in turn notified the electric company who had men on the spot in a hurry rehanging the light and making necessary repairs.

"Once is enough," Mr. Schmidt is quoted as saying, "and that came near being more than enough."

Two Killed in Building Crash

Four Separate Probes Are Underway to Determine Collapse of New York Building in Which Two Were Killed and Eight Injured.

New York, Dec. 12.—Four separate investigations were under way today to determine the responsibility for the collapse of the three upper floors in a four story building at 26 West 47th street, being remodelled, late yesterday, in which two men were killed and eight injured. Several of the injured, it is feared, will die. The dead man, whose body was first taken out of the wreckage after hours of searching, has not been identified. Salvatore Blundo, one of the injured, died early today.

Some of the injured were not taken out of the wreckage until nearly eight hours after the building collapsed. Rescuers aided by policemen and firemen, worked frantically to reach them. The rescue work was highly dangerous as the walls which were still standing threatened to collapse any minute.

Joseph Blancho and Salvator Blundo, two of the most critically injured, were kept alive for more than six hours, while resuce work was going on, by being fed through a tube. Oxygen was also pumped through to them.

FEAR STEAM YACHT MIRIAM FOUNDERED

New York, Dec. 12.—Coast guard and naval communications officers here were asked today by E. M. Statler, hotel owner, to begin a search for his steam yacht Miriam which left Charleston, S. C., with twelve men on November 30 and has not been heard from since.

The Miriam commanded by Captain Thomas Farrington, was bound for Miami, Fla., where Statler was to board her. It is feared the yacht may have foundered in the storm that swept the Atlantic seaboard a week ago. The vessel carried no radio apparatus.

THE CHURCH AND THE STAGE.

At a recent matinee given by a committee of actors for the benefit of the building fund of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, Bishop Manning said: "It would be impossible for me to express my appreciation of the deep interest in the building of the Cathedral shown by our leading actors and actresses. It is only another illustration of the spirit which the representatives of the stage always show, but it is a very striking illustration of their spirit. It has been a revelation to us to see how the appeal for the erection of this great building for purely religious and spiritual purposes has stirred the imagination and touched the hearts of people of every sort. I am especially happy that the actors and actresses are claiming their own share in it and are undertaking to build a part of one of the great bays of the nave. The splendid thing about it is that this part of the Cathedral will stand as a visible symbol and reminder of the relationship which ought to exist between the stage and the church. These two great agencies for the development of the highest in human life ought to work in fullest sympathy and cooperation."

It is a far cry from a bishop's attitude herein revealed to that of the attitude of a prominent Episcopal clergyman of New York back in the eighteen-seventies who declined to officiate at the funeral of an actor, but said that the rector of a small neighboring church might do so, to which Joseph Jefferson replied: "Now God bless the little church around the corner!"—thus giving the latter to lasting fame.

THE "NEW POETRY."

A contributor to the Atlantic Monthly refers to the "strong young men" of the new literature who are sweeping everything before them. It appears that one of these wonderful new lights is E. E. Cummings who, according to the New Republic's reviewer of his latest volume of so-called verse, has "tremendously invigorated and enriched American poetry, and has given it greater impetus than the New Poetry rebels of half a generation ago ever dreamed of." A typical bit of the Cummings verse, which has so "enriched American poetry," is quoted as follows:

There's a portrait
Over the door very notable of the sultan's nose pullable and rosy flanked by the scrumptious magdalene of whoisit and madame something by gainsborough
Just the playthings
for dust n'est-ce pas?

The reviewer referred to enthusiastically characterizes this as "a kaleidoscopic entity in which each atomic unit is a bold daub of color." If this sort of thing is "sweeping everything before it," the sane-minded observer is likely to conclude that that which is swept deserves the associations of its dust-dump. The manifest aim of such "poetry" is to attract attention in the only way possible to its makers—by saying nothing in so obscure a manner that sensation-seeking faddists will rejoice in the vain imagination that something far above the heads of the common herd has been said.

In an address at the Women's National Club in New York on December 1, Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, member of the Republican Women's National Executive Committee, warned women against being unconscious agents of the propaganda." She said "that women's organizations were frequently victimized by propagandists and induced to echo unthinkingly the thoughts of others." And further: "What women need today above everything else is seasoned judgment. They should fit themselves to differentiate between fact and phantom." The way for them to accomplish this she said, was first "to throw aside intolerance for politics and politicians" and then "familiarize themselves with the Constitution."

It looks as if the troubles of the Stone Mountain Memorial did not end with the substitution of another sculptor for Gutzon Borglum. President Alderman of the University of Virginia says of the Jackson figure modelled by Augustus Lukeman: "It does not suggest Stonewall Jackson to me in the slightest. He never wore a hat like that in his life. It might be any general on either side during the war. It is a fine figure, to be sure, full of life and stir and movement, but no man will recognize the face of Stonewall Jackson as it has come down to us." The news that Lee's figure is also unsatisfactory can please no one—except perhaps Gutzon Borglum.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

THE MAN OF THE FUTURE.

One of our scientists has been speculating upon the type of man who is going to inhabit this earth thousands of years from now. He is of the opinion that he will not be such a wonderfully intellectual being but will be stronger physically, with more of the animal qualities about him.

Another scientist believes that men at a future day will be super intellectuals, living on little tablets of concentrated foods, and that there will not therefore be the need for the heart, lungs, intestine, and so forth of our present day man.

These statement of course set us to thinking about our bodies, and the wonderful way they have adapted themselves to the changing ways of living. It is not many years ago since walking, and the use of horses was our only means of transportation. Today there is the motor car and the locomotive for the ground, the aeroplane for the air, and the submarine for under the sea.

There was all the work for the hands and body before, while the wealthy class indulged in sports and pastimes. Today a large percentage of people do not have to work with their bodies but with their brains.

Now what is going to happen?

Of course no one really knows, but certainly with the strong heart, the large lungs, the very long intestine, the heavy muscles covering our body, all you and I can do about it is to try to put all parts into use.

You will at once say "Well I use my digestive apparatus, and my heart and lungs seem to go along all right without any thought from me."

But that heart, lungs, and intestine were made to take care of the body from the standpoint of the physical work that body would do, as it used that mass of muscle that completely covers the body.

You can argue in a circle here of course, but your common sense tells you that you can only keep the vital organs strong, by giving them a certain amount of work daily by the use of your muscles. If your work doesn't give it, you'll have to get it in an artificial way, that is by exercise.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Rawson, Jr.

WAR IN ALL BUT NAME.

Were the thirteen American colonies at war with Great Britain 150 years ago, or were they not? There had been no formal declaration of war on either side. The Continental Congress and the congresses or conventions of the separate colonies were now and then issuing protestations of their continued loyalty to the king. In particular, they were announcing that the last thing they had in mind was independence of the British crown.

On the other hand, the separate colonies were setting up governments of their own to replace the royal governors and their retinue who had been driven out. Something closely akin to what we call martial law was in effect here and there under circumstances which virtually amounted to war, whatever name was given to the situation at that time. The colonies were raising militia, drilling minute men, and establishing navies. In Virginia, as we have seen, civil war was in full swing between the revolutionists and the Tories. All along the western frontier there were plots and counterplots, with patriots, Tories and Indian tribes playing for position, and occasionally playing grimly with implements of war.

Then, beyond all this, the colonies were unitedly, through the Continental Congress, maintaining an army under Washington, directing an expedition against Canada which was by no means defensive, and creating a navy. There remained not a single vestige of the old British authority which they would recognize. They were besieging in Boston the only British force then on their shores, and in every vital detail they had placed themselves on a war basis; and if anything were yet required to convince them that they were at war, they learned that the king and his ministers were calling them rebels and traitors and were hiring European soldiers to come over and conquer them; and they had their own abundant evidence of what had happened at Lexington and Concord, at Bunker Hill, and at Portland, Maine, and other coast towns where zealous representatives of the British navy had visited and left striking evidences of their displeasure.

So that, with all these things in mind, it is not difficult for us to understand what the congress was planning when 150 years ago the present time it named a secret committee "for the sole purpose of corresponding with friends in Great Britain, Ireland and any other parts of the world."

Our first "secret service," not to say an international spy system, was now in the making.

The Meaning of Blood Pressure

Medical Director of New York Telephone Company Gives Radio Health Talk Over WGY on "What Is Meant By Blood Pressure."

In a radio broadcast Friday night from Station WGY, Dr. Edward S. McSweeny, medical director of the New York Telephone Company said: "Blood pressure in a word is an index not a disease, and everyone has a blood pressure just as everyone has a pulse. To keep it normal is largely within our own control. When abnormal the reason can be found only by careful general examination and tests which often puzzle and worry the cleverest doctor as to their meaning before he finds the answer. You can help yourself by letting him do the worrying."

Dr. McSweeny's was one of a program of weekly health talks which the State Department of Health has been broadcasting for nearly four years. These talks probably have been heard by hundreds of thousands of persons during this period of time and many listeners have written to the department for further information aobut the various subjects discussed.

When Rule Goes Wrong.

"The popular saying: 'one's blood pressure should be the sum of one's age plus one hundred' while in general true," said Dr. McSweeny, "is like many such sayings apt to be absolutely wrong when applied to any one individual. There is no such thing as a standard blood pressure to which everyone of a given age should conform. In fact, even in the individual there are daily differences; slight variations occur by reason even of changing the position from lying down to standing up, or after meals. It is foolish, therefore, for anyone to attach importance to having lowered or raised his blood pressure a few points.

"The only person who can interpret your blood pressure reading intelligently is the physician who has a knowledge of many other things about your individual body and your health. The physician who is most likely to have this knowledge is the one who has been your physician for some time.

What Blood Pressure Indicates.

"In general, low blood pressure indicates a lack of general tone. High directs attention to certain diseases, blood pressure, on the other hand, the changes due to advancing years and, especially in women, disturbances of middle age.

"Only by taking a blood pressure reading with the instrument made for the purpose can it be determined accurately, and often the blood pressure shown by the instrument is the first suggestion to patient or physician that one of the things it may indicate is present. A blood pressure test therefore should be a part of every good examination, for these conditions like others are most effectively and often successfully treated only when discovered early.

"Visible throbbing arteries do not mean high blood pressure nor does loss of blood necessarily lower it. High blood pressure does not signify too much blood or any change at all in the blood itself, but means that the blood is attempting to circulate under abnormal resistance.

Neglecting Precautions.

"That 'one is as old as his arteries' is another popular saying. High blood pressure too often shows that the patient while perhaps knowing this old saw, has not realized what he could do to influence the matter; and by overeating and drinking, chronic constipation and repeated unnecessary colds and other infections he has carried a load for years under which he has finally broken down.

"Nature provides a wide margin of safety for most of us but it is not inexhaustible. The ills which we generally class as petty or trivial, frequently repeated, and bad habits of hygiene long continued are probably much more concerned in most of us in determining whether we live as long as we should and are able to enjoy such length of life as is given us than are the comparatively few serious diseases which are common amongst adults. You cannot buy a lower blood pressure. The most a skilled physician can give you is advice which you and only you can carry out. Regret and remorse may save your soul but will lower your blood pressure but very little if years of bad living or neglect have raised it to a high point.

Should Learn the Cause.

"On the other hand if high blood pressure is found and leads to the discovery of kidney disease, much can be done by proper treatment and if it should indicate syphilis, a cure can be effected. If on the other hand the high blood pressure is only a temporary phenomenon, one of many symptoms of a natural change which will pass in a short time, there is no need to be unduly alarmed about it; the measures which favorably influence such states will also effect blood pressure and help to keep it within bounds until it returns to normal. A blood pressure well below normal limits indicates the necessity of finding out what is the cause of the poor condition and eradicating it."

Plow as Wedding Guest

The recent appearance of tractors has created great excitement in isolated villages of Turkestan, Central Asia.

The mullahs, or priests, are strongly opposed to the invention, which they call "sheitan omarch," or "the devil's plow," and they utter dark prophecies of crop failures and other disasters that will follow its use; but the Turkestan peasants take kindly to the tractor after they realize its superiority over their primitive wooden, ox-drawn plows.

One case is reported in which a Turkestan peasant insisted that the tractor should be present at his marriage, as a sort of honored guest.

ACTIVITIES AT THE ST. REMY CHURCH

On Friday evening, December 4, an enjoyable enterta inment was given at the St. Remy Church.

The program consisted of musical numbers by the piano pupils of Mrs. Charles S. Schwab, an hour of mysticism by Fred L. Van Deusen of Kingston, the sleight of hand artist; a group of songs, Tosti's "Good Bye" and Nevins's "Mighty Lak' a Rose" by Mrs. Schwab and a dialogue "Joshing the Janitor" by Robert Hoffman and Mr. Gulick.

The proceeds amounted to a little over $40.

On Sunday, December 13, there will be no preaching service at either Ulster Park or St. Remy. The pastor will be away on account of a death in his family.

On Sunday, December 20, the Rev. Philip Jonker will speak at the Church service at the usual hour. His subject will be the work of Central College. He will also present this work at Ulster Park at the morning service and at Union Center at the evening service.

That Colorful Handkerchiefs, Dainty Neckwear, a Smart Handbag, Makes for East Christmas Shopping.

The gift of a handkerchief has ceased to be trite. Once not so long ago, no matter how fine these necessities of life might be, they savored of the unimaginative. Now, with handkerchiefs as gay as gay can be, and expressive of all sorts of sentiments, one welcomes them as a gift and rejoices in their selection for one's friends.

It would appear as though rounding out the Christmas list would be an easy matter this season for with so many delectable bits of costume jewelry from which to select and neckwear again in vogue, it gives variety to one's purchases, besides which there are handbags and were they ever more alluring, or varied from the mammoth envelopes in needlepoint and silk or in novelty leather to the diminutive pouches and other framed types, which are as dainty inside as out?

Leather has, of course, returned, naturally enough since it has been absent quite long enough, and it seems that never have leather bags been so attractive, to begin with they are colorful and to end with they take on such attractive forms, some like little barrels, and others melon shaped. They have, too, such entertaining metal fastenings, which open with a zip and are not only decorative but protective. There seems to be no rhyme nor reason governing the size of handbags, some women carry extremely large ones, a boon to the traveler who has perhaps a sizable passport to carry about together with the odds and ends of a woman's handbag invariably collects.

These enormous bags were launched at the Paris openings by one or two houses and have been ordered extensively in suede and bright leathers as well, of course, as in silks.

The exquisitely fine beaded bag has become a classic and is still being carried, as well as bags of Aubusson tapestry mounted on metal and jeweled frames.

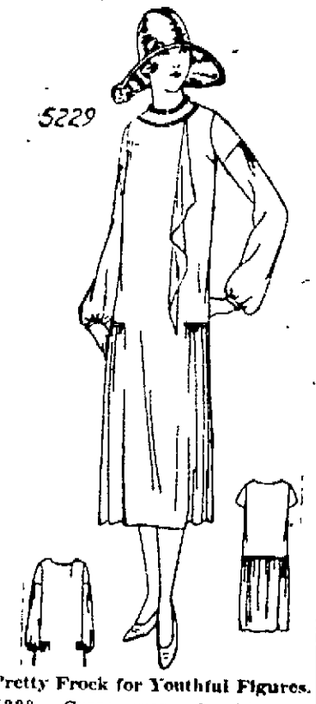
OUR DAILY PATTERN.



A Pretty Frock for Youthful Figures.

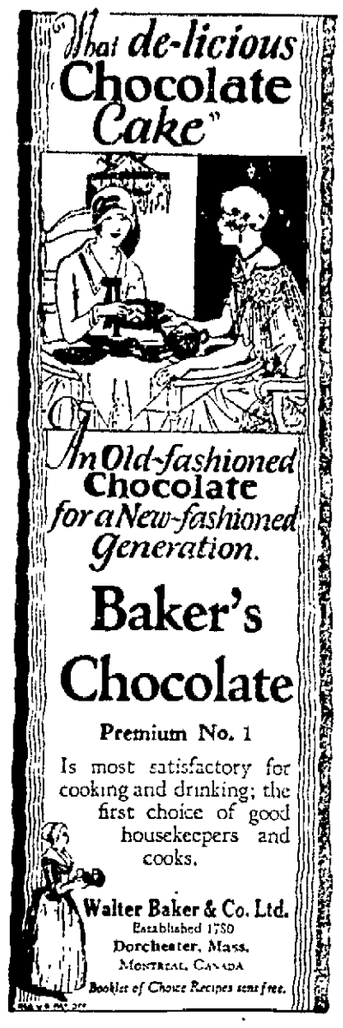
5229. Crepe, crepe de chine or voile would be very pleasing for this style. It is also attractive in figured silk with crepe or georgette for the cascade and full sleeve portions.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. A 16 year size requires 2⅞ yards of 54 inch material if made as illustrated in the large view. Without the cascade 2⅜ yards are required. With short sleeves 2¼ yards are required. To make cascade and full sleeve portions of contrasting material requires ⅔ yard of 54 inch material. The width of the dress at the foot is two yards.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Fashion Book Notice.

Send 15c in coin or stamps to The Freeman for our up-to-date Fall and Winter 1925 Book of Fashions, showing color plates, and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses' and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various staple stitches), all valuable aims to the home dressmaker.



INTRICATELY SET NECKLACES AND INTERESTING NECKLINES ARRIVE.

(By Eleanor Gunn.)

Black Features in Gowns by Mlle. Marguerite des Hayes, Transparent Chiffons and Chantilly Laces Are Used With Bright Touches of Chinese Embroidery or Metallic Brocade.

All manner of interesting necklines are used up with these days and nights, and not content with interest in the way the neck of the frock is cut, there are chokers and chains to add further allure. The days of the beaded choker are on the wane and in their place comes the long chain, extending to the waist, or in exaggerated cases to the knee, these chains sometimes wound about the throat as well. Interest in old time settings shows no sign of abating, and many quaint necklaces again see the light of day, even in such old fashioned stones as garnet. There is, too, a craze for such pendants as in Catholic countries, adorned the statues of the saints and many women travelling abroad are picking up these treasures, wearing them usually suspended about their throats by a cord. The importance of jewelry, both costume and otherwise, can hardly be overestimated this winter, and while there are some pendant earrings worn, there is a movement to popularize the earring which is flat against the lobe of the ear. All of these things make for the effect of formality one of the dominant notes of the season.

While beaded evening gowns are by no means taboo, those which are embroidered with sequins or a combination of sequins with beads are considered smartest. Frequently the sequins are the color of the foundation with large silver or gold beads added or those in contrasting colors, such as turquoise and coral. Sequins are frequently put on in large diamond formation, about the hips, or in triangles of varying lone suggestive of the Cubist influence. Most of the smart dresses have their greatest elaboration at the edge of the skirt, leaving the bodice as a background for jewels. The fashion of wearing a flower on the shoulder continues, especially when the flower is gold.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

GOLDEN PHEASANTS

"I hate to boast,'" said the Golden Pheasant, whom the others called Gregory, "yes, I hate to boast," he repeated.

"In fact I don't know that I shall boast."

"What have you to say?" asked another Golden Pheasant, whom they called Georgie.

"But I am afraid it would be boasting if I said it all," answered Gregory.

"Why would it be boasting? What's it all about?" the other Golden Pheasants asked, as they gathered around Gregory.

"Well, the keeper was saying some mighty fine things about us today and I would love to tell them to you but I don't want to appear conceited.

"They weren't just about me—they were about all of us.

"You see it was a nice day, and there were lots of visitors at the zoo.

"Well, the keeper told these visitors all about our family and he said the most flattering things."

"Oh," said Georgie, "it wouldn't be boasting to repeat what the keeper said."

"Besides," chimed in some of the others, "it would make us all the more anxious to live up to the nice speeches he made about us

"If people think well of us we try to live up to their good opinion

"If they don't think so well of us we don't appear at our best, and aren't always at our best.

"Then too, it is very encouraging to hear kind speeches and complimentary remarks."

"True, true," said Gregory.

"All that you say is true. Then I will tell you about the keeper's talk.

"In the first place the people said: "'Are those pheasants?' And they pointed to us. The keeper told them that we were known as the Golden Pheasant family and the people said,

*"I Hate to Boast," Said the Golden Pheasant.

"'What wonderful colors they have.'

"'They have the most gorgeous collection of beautifully shaded wings and feathers we have ever seen.'

"And then they said that they saw golden shades, orange, yellow, scarlet and even deep blue colors in our feathers.

"They seemed to be quite impressed by us.

"Then the keeper spoke, and it was what he said that was so wonderful."

"Tell us," urged the others.

"Oh, yes, I really must tell you and share it with you," said Gregory, "it was so wonderful."

"We're eager to hear. Don't keep us waiting."

"Not another minute!

"The keeper said:

"'They are just as nice and good and sociable as they are beautiful.

"'Their real home is in China but they have been brought to different parts of North America and haven't made any fuss about changes of climate.

"'They've taken everything as they have found it and been as pleasant as could be.

"'There is no selfishness along with their beauty, nor are they spoilt in their ways.

"'In fact,' the keeper continued, 'they are about the best-tempered birds I have ever known.

"'They get along with each other, they always look smart and handsome for the visitors.

"'And I can tell you—I am mighty fond of them.'"

"Oh, how nice, all the Golden Pheasants said.

"We will live up to that praise, we will."

"It was pretty wonderful," said Gregory.

Bad Enough

The old countryman was paying a visit to London. It was a business trip, but he resolved that, after he had settled things he must do, he would take a good look around and see the sights.

After a time he came to the Labor Exchange. He stood for a while gazing at a door with a sign "Women's Exchange." Then he entered and inquired:

"Be this the Woman's Exchange?"

The clerk, a plain-looking woman, replied:

"Yes."

"And be you the woman?"

Once more the clerk replied in the affirmative.

"Then I think I'll stick to 'Liza," said the old farmer in firm tones.

Illiterate Mayors

At government offices in Paris which have to deal with local administrative affairs, it is not unusual to find official documents on which space for the mayor's signature is filled by a cross with the regulation phrase: "States he cannot write."

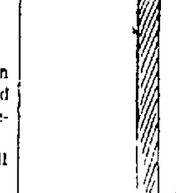
SANDWICHES

The season, the occasion and the taste of those served will vary the sandwiches which one will care to offer.



Autumn Sandwiches. — Chop fine walnut or butternut meats, add an equal measure of finely chopped olives and mix with one can of potted ham. If needed moisten with a little salad dressing. Spread on slices of rye, graham or white bread with pimento butter. Serve with coffee. Black walnut meats are rich and full of flavor and make a delicious change from the milder English walnuts.

Pimento Butter.—Cream one-half cupful of butter. Drain and dry well three red peppers from a can, put through sieve and gradually work the pulp into the butter; season with salt.

Spanish Onion Sandwiches.—Cut white bread very thin and trim off the crusts. Chop fine one Spanish or Bermuda onion. Mix well with mayonnaise to the consistency to spread. Use as a filling for sandwich bread that has been spread with pimento butter These sandwiches are especially good with potato salad or string-bean salad.

Waldorf Sandwiches.—Mix with one cupful of finely chopped celery, add one cupful of finely chopped Jonathan apples, then add one cupful of finely sliced, blanched almonds. Mix all together and add enough mayonnaise to moisten. Spread on thinly sliced nut bread that has been spread with mayonnaise. Spread the mixture on one slice, cover with a heart leaf of lettuce and put together in pairs. Serve cut into triangles. Serve with coffee.

Toasted Jam Sandwiches.—Cut white or raisin bread into thin slices, trim off the crusts and spread half the slices with raspberry jam. Spread the other half with creamed butter, put together in pairs, cut into narrow strips, arrange in a wire broiler and toast a delicate brown. Serve with hot cocoa.

When roasting meat add a tablespoonful of sugar to the basting liquor; it adds flavor as well as color to the roast and gravy.

THE INDIA INKLYNX.

The inklynx, or wild catnipper, is found in the forest north of Benares, and is noted for its habit of blowing cigarette smoke from its nostrils when angered. The natives catch it and put it in a special cage, outside of which a few tame cats are tied. Desiring to nip a cat, the inklynx becomes angered and blows out a quantity of smoke, which is caught in a smokestack and distilled into India ink. The high price of such ink makes the inklynx a valuable asset.

An almond and a filbert form the main parts of this strange beast, which has the usual popcorn ears and sawed-off peanut kernel nose. The legs are toothpicks with split peanut feet, and the tail is a clove. Whiskers can be obtained by clipping a few horsehairs from the collar of papa's best dress suit.

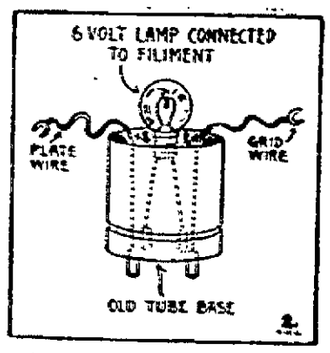
SAVE YOUR TUBES.

Easily Made Tester Saves Tubes and Checks Wiring.

F. M. Russell.



After you have wired up your new set, you carefully check the wiring before inserting the tubes. With all your care, however, you sometimes notice a bright flash as soon as a tube is inserted in a socket and another tube or set of tubes have gone west.

To avoid this, take the base of an old tube and remove the glass bulb. Trace the fine wires that lead to the filaments and solder these wires to the side of a small automobile or flashlight bulb that takes 6 volts. Now, trace the grid wire and solder a piece of flexible wire to it, and the same with the wire leading to the plate. Next melt some sealing wax into the socket and set the bulb in the center being sure to keep all leads well apart.

To test the filaments, connect the batteries, then insert the tester in each of the sockets one at a time. If the bulb lights you are O. K. Suppose, however, it burns out, then you know you have your B battery shorting on the filament.

To check the grid and plate contacts on the tubes and to see that they are making good contact, insert the tester in the socket. Now connect the wire coming from the grid to one side of a small bulb, connect the other side of the bulb to a battery, and the other side of the battery connect to the grid terminal on the socket. This will give you a positive indication as to whether the tube will make good contact. The plate contacts can be tested in the same manner.

Testing Diamonds

In the detection of imitation diamonds, the hardness of the stone is one of the deciding tests. A genuine diamond can be filed with the hardest instrument without being scratched. A faked stone will crack and probably break up under the process. Another test is to place the stone in water. If it loses its brilliance, the stone is discarded at once as being false.

Love of Praise

In a word, we mean the gratification of our thirst for applause. That thirst, if the last infirmity of noble minds, is also the first infirmity of weak ones; and, on the whole, the strongest impulsive influence of average humanity: the greatest efforts of the race have always been traceable to the love of praise, as its greatest catastrophes to the love of pleasure.—Ruskin.

A Bishop on Honeymoons

A bishop once said: "Honeymoons are a forced homage to false ideas, a waste of money and a loss of time, which soon comes to be dreary and weary. Most of all, they are a risk for love, which ought not so soon to be unpleasantly tested by the inevitable petulance of a secret ennui. Six days, if you must, and then go straight home."

A well-known surgeon says that if your feet ache you should visit your dentist. But the roots don't really go down as far as all that. They only feel like it.

About the only things that mediums have been unable to materialize are figures of speech.

Paying your debts is a good habit, but very expensive.

Maybe that fellow who lived several days in a New York sewer was a popular novelist in quest of further material.

"You can't sit quiet and produce profits," says an efficiency expert. But the hens do pretty well at it.

"Say, my wife wants to know what you do at the bank."

"Teller."

No Man's Land is a barber shop, nowadays.

Mother: "What do you think of my daughter?"

Gentleman Caller: "I am sorry, but I am no judge of painting."

Loyalty.

A man may lose his house and lot,
His friends may pass him by,
He may not have a thin dime left
To rent a slab of pie;
But if he owns the homliest
And saddest dog in town,
He has one pal whose honest love
Will never turn him down.

A man may kick his mangy pup
And cuss him day and night,
Still will the faithful cur be true
And greet him with delight;
Lifelong he sits upon the porch
And wags his happy tail,
To greet his lord when he shall come
From Congress or from jail.

If the family library has a check book and a cook book it can get by.

The surprising thing about those persons who read the moving picture titles out loud is that they can read.

Historical Note—George Washington married, and in due time became the father of his country.

Rastus: "Why is dat a black cow gives white milk what makes yellow buttah?"

Sambo: "Dat's easy! For de same reason dat blackberries am red when dey is green."

Two-pants suits just increase the difficulty of remembering where the key is.

One way to live a ripe old age is to avoid being so infernally rotten while young.

He: "I ought to, I've practiced all my life."

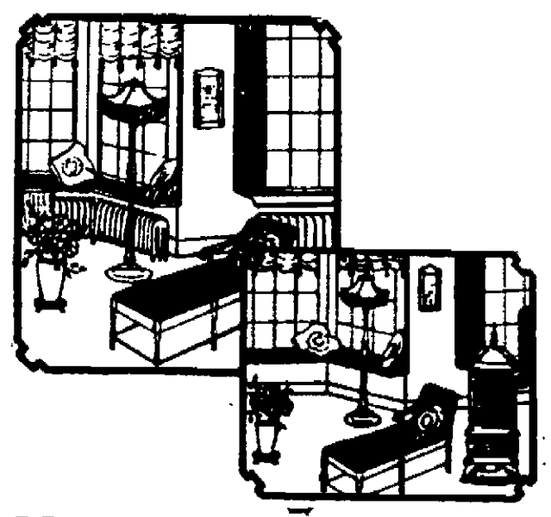
Keeps Plaster Soft

Plaster of paris may be kept soft by the use of commercial retarders which may be purchased from retail dealers of plaster of paris and gypsum. The amount to be used depends upon the material itself. Ordinarily 2 per cent of a retarder such as tannic acid will prevent the plaster of paris from setting for about two hours.



Make your home worth $1500 more

Try to borrow money on a house that still relies on old-fashioned stoves for warmth. You'll be surprised at its low loan value. Install radiator heat. Then, ask your banker for a loan on the same property. Its value will have increased several hundred dollars—much more than the cost of the improvement.

Radiator heated houses are easier sold or rented because people appreciate comfortable, economical, clean and steady heat. Radiators save space in crowded rooms and are far safer; especially where children are.

Those who realize the desirability of radiator heat are gladly willing to secure it. Why not let us install it in your home at far less cost than the increased property value would be?

Appreciation of Phoenicia Priest

Phoenicia, N. Y., Dec. 12.—The entire community of Phoenicia is grieved that the Rev. Thomas A. Dinan, M. S., the pastor of Saint Francis de Sales Church, has been transferred to Altamont. At the same time Father Dinan's successor, the Rev. Thomas J. O. Flanigan, M. S., is welcomed most heartily.

Father Dinan has been in Phoenicia for the past three years and during that time he has won the esteem of all those with whom he has come in contact. He has worked undefatigably, never sparing himself but constantly helping others. He has always been available, neither weather nor distance has deterred him in his mission. Many times his duties have called him several miles away and he has gone most willingly, forgetting himself in his eagerness to be of service to those who have needed him.

Father Dinan's kind and sympathetic nature has made him the confidant and counselor of his people. He has always had time to listen to tales of trouble and trial and has ever given careful wise advice. His influence has been strongly felt at all times.

He has made Saint Francis de Sales Church the Cathedral of the Catskills. During future time it will be a reminder of Father Dinan's love and devotion. He has completely renovated the mission churches at Allaben and at Pine Hill. For months he went from place to place endeavoring to procure authentic information about the parish from its beginning to the present time. He published the results of his search in a little history—a lasting memory of the men who have made the parish what it is today.

The parishioners wished to show their appreciation of Father Dinan's work but there was so little time between the news of his removal and his departure that they were not able to do as much as they would like to have done. They gave Father Dinan a farewell reception in the Parish Hall on Saturday evening, December 5. On behalf of the parish P. Leming presented Father Dinan with a gift.

After Mr. Leming's speech Father O'Flanigan gave the departing pastor a most beautiful tribute. He summarized Father Dinan's achievements in Phoenicia and prophesied that Father Dinan will be successful in his new field. He is going to Altamont, and his task there is a gigantic and honored one—professor of moral theology and vice rector of the seminary.

Father Dinan expressed his gratitude for Father O'Flanigan's laudations. He also had a prophesy to make, namely, that Father O'Flanigan, having accomplished great things in the past, will continue to have success as pastor of Saint Frances de Sales Father Dinan addressed his parishioners, telling them of his sorrow at leaving them and asking them to do all in their power to aid the new pastor.

Father Dinan takes with him the best wishes of all who know him.

Looking Forward

Believing that the early bird gets the worm a man inserted the following advertisement in the Cincinnati Enquirer: Electrical Men — Will you need an engineer in a few years? I have been studying electrical engineering at night and will finish in two years.

Use of Power Is Greatest Aid

Industry's as Well as Individual Employe's Earnings Much Increased by Letting Machines Do Heavy Work—Liberates Men for Brainwork.

New York, Dec. 12.—The rapid and vast increase in the use of mechanical power is the secret of the high productiveness and efficiency of American industry, agriculture and transportation, and is one of the factors accounting for the high "real" wages, or prosperity, of the American worker, according to comparative studies of the development of primary power in the United States, made by the National Industrial Conference Board of 247 Park avenue.

Primary power available in manufacturing industries, mining, agriculture and on the railroads today exceeds 150,000,000 horse power. Of this, nearly one-fifth, or about 33,000,000 horsepower, is available in the manufacturing industries, as against 2,346,142 horsepower in 1869, the earliest date covered by the study.

Brainwork vs. Brawn.

The significance of this immense growth of power development, an increase of 1,311% or 14 times the amount of power application in about 50 years, is not merely that of correspondingly greater production, the Conference Board emphasizes, but brings with it additional benefits to the individual worker as well as to industry as a whole, and to society at large. For, to the extent that mechanical power is harnessed to do the heavy work in industry and the purely physical things that machines can do, formerly done by human labor, to that extent men are released from purely physical work for the doing of things that require brainwork. While the earning power of brawn is limited to so many dollars a day, the earning power of brainwork is limited practically only by the ability of the individual. Furthermore, the board declares, inasmuch as power application makes possible greater production at lower unit cost, the effectiveness of the individual worker, and with it, that of the entire industrial enterprise is increased, permitting of greater earnings both for the investors as well as the workers in industry.

Dollars Purchasing Power Greater.

Since 1899, or during the last quarter of a century, installed primary power in manufacturing industries increased 236 per cent, while the number of wage earners increased only 90 per cent, and the volume of production 185 per cent according to the conference board study. While data concerning the "real" wage, that is the purchasing power of workers' earnings as far back as 1899 are lacking, the purchasing power of average weekly earnings in the United States today is 28 per cent greater than it was in 1914. Although at the beginning of the century there were only 2.14 horsepower behind each worker in industry, in 1923 the horsepower per wage earner was 3.33, an increase of 56 per cent. The total primary power available in manufacturing industries in 1923 was $33,094,228, of which slightly more than 50 per cent was steam power and about 40 per cent was electric motor power run on purchased current. The rapid increase in the use of electrical power is shown by the fact that whereas in 1889 less than one-half of one per cent of the installed power in manufacturing industries consisted of electric motors, run by either purchased or generated current, in 1923 97 per cent or more than two-thirds of the total primary power was represented by electric motors run by purchased or generated current.

Farms Use Power.

The use of power in American agriculture has had a similarly remarkable growth and has had similar effects in increasing the productive efficiency of labor. It is estimated that agriculture in the United States uses practically as much primary power as all manufacturing and central station plants combined. In 1850, there were less than two horsepower per worker engaged in agriculture, while in 1920 the number of horsepower per agricultural worker had more than doubled, reaching 4.5. In this way the volume of production per worker in agriculture has been nearly trebled in the past seventy-five years.

The horsepower available on American farms in 1850 is estimated at less than 8 million, but had increased to over 47 million by 1924. Through this vast increase in power, it is estimated that nearly 20 million less persons are required for agricultural production in the United States today than would have been needed if this great growth in power had not taken place. Whereas in manufacturing industries more than two-thirds of the power used is electrical, in agriculture as yet only a small percentage is of this character. In 1924 less than 5 per cent of the total horsepower available in agriculture was electrical, while over 40 per cent was derived from work animals.

Since the power used and the capital investment through which it is applied, are important factors in the productivity of labor, it is significant that the investment per primary horsepower is largest in agriculture, approximating $1,800 per horsepower, followed by manufacturing with about $1,500 per horsepower, mining with $1,000 and the railroads with about $300 per primary horsepower.

Add Motoring Perils

One of Attleboro's fairest little maidens has been having a rush job done at the dentist's. A broken tooth needed expert attention. It was no ordinary mishap, the breaking of that tooth. She and he were motoring and while kisses were being exchanged the car hit a particularly rough spot in the road. There was a facial collision in which lips proved ineffectual bumpers, two sets of teeth met head on—and then came concern on his part, lamentation on her part, and the enlisting of the dentist's services to repair damages sustained in an unusual way.—Boston Globe.

Honey Bath for Pearls

Baths in newly gathered honey are recommended by an European gem expert to restore the luster to pearls that have grown dull, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Treatments of 48 hours at two-week intervals for a period of about six months are said to produce the most satisfactory results and the honey should be removed with alcohol instead of water.

Visitors Find Ready Welcome in Denmark

It is a common habit of American towns to erect a colossal "Welcome" sign by the railway stations for the information of tourists. In England and also in America, hundreds of homes have inscribed the magic word on the doormat, where of course, the visitor wipes his boots. In Denmark, however, there are no electric signs to bid you welcome, and no house "says it with doormats," but I venture to say that there is not a town or village in the country, where it is not written on the face of every blue-eyed Dane that you meet. From modern Esbjerg to ancient Elsinore, from Frederikshavn to Moen, every face seems to say, "We are glad to see you in our country." And what a country it is, in which to take pleasure in such a welcome! Surrounded by the sea on nearly all sides, a kingdom of islands, lakes and woods. From the shelving dunes of Jutland to the rugged cliffs of Bornholm, wood-encircled fjords and romance-encrusted castles provide a welcome whose sincerity can never be doubted.—From "My European Excursion," by Edwin Robert Petrie.

Hindsight

The man who is always looking back can see where he was, but not where he will be.—Altoona Mirror.

Declare Birds Are Insensible to Color

Bavarian scientists claim to have made certain the fact that birds cannot see color, are not affected by it; in fact, any color is good with the birds, even those of bright and gay plumage having no appreciation of the fact that they are better dressed than others.

Even the gorgeous display of the male peacock brings no sensation of beautiful colors to the eyes of other birds about.

The test with birds' eyes show, the scientists assert, that birds do not look at things as human beings do, that all flying birds by day see everything in a bright, red orange light and are only sensitive in a slight way to the short waves of light that make blue and violet visible. Night-flying birds are less sensitive to colors than those that make their flight by day, the eyes of all birds being screened from intense light by tiny globules of oil in the retina of the eye that act as color screens. The Bavarian scientists say the Darwin idea, that beautiful plumage of birds is a factor in the selection of mates, is merely a fanciful theory, poetic and interesting but lacking scientific support.

POP CORN GOOD WINTER SUNDAY SUPPER

Popping Corn for Sunday Supper in Winter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Though cornmeal is now used in other parts of the world, pop corn seems still to be a peculiarly American product. White, fluffy kernels of popped corn have been found among prehistoric Indian remains in South America and also specially shaped earthenware implements with a depression in the center and a long handle, evidently the equivalent of our modern corn poppers. In olden days in this country the grains were sometimes thrown on the hot coals, where they burst and bounded back on the floor for the children to scramble after. The varieties of corn best adapted for pop corn, methods of cultivation, poppers, and suggestions for making such pop-corn dainties as pop-corn balls are described in Farmers' Bulletin 553, which may be obtained from the United States Department of Agriculture.

Though pop corn is most often eaten between meals and as a sort of food accessory, it has a food value similar to that of the same weight of corn prepared in other ways. It makes an excellent breakfast cereal served with milk or cream, and is so used in many families. It is hard to imagine a better supper for a winter Sunday at home than corn popped over the open fire and served hot with melted butter or with milk and a little salt, and perhaps with apples or other fruit as a finish.

CANDIED BERRIES ARE IDEAL GIFTS

Homemade Confections Are Excellent Remembrances for Christmas.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Unusual homemade confections are always an ideal Christmas remembrance when one does not wish to spend very much money. The little jars with screwed-on lids in which salad dressing is often sold make admirable containers for gifts of this kind if they are decorated with bright-colored splashes of enamel paint or simple designs in black.

Candied cranberries are easily made. The United States Department of Agriculture recommends the following way of preparing them:

Candied Cranberries.

2 cupfuls of large cranberries. 2 cupfuls water. 2 cupfuls sugar.

Select large, firm cranberries. Make three small slits, each one-eighth inch long, in each berry with a point of a penknife. Boil the sugar and water together until clear. Allow this sirup to cool, add the berries and bring very slowly to the boiling point. The saucepan should be large enough to permit all the berries to float at the top of the sirup during cooking. If the berries are heated too quickly, the skins will burst before the sirup soaks into the pulp. As soon as the sirup boils, take the dish off the stove and let it stand overnight.

Next day drain the sirup from the berries and reduce it to about half its original volume by boiling. Cool the sirup, place the berries in it, heat again slowly; boil very gently for three or four minutes, and allow to stand for two hours or more. Then boil gently a third time for five minutes. Allow the berries to stand in the thick sirup overnight; warm once more, so that the sirup will be thin enough to pour easily, and drain the berries from the sirup.

Spread them on a clean cloth or oiled paper to dry. When dry, the berries should be bright, firm, plump, and semitransparent.

Jellied peel is another delicious confection which can be made from materials available practically everywhere. Either grapefruit, orange, or lemon peel may be used.

Jellied Peel.

5 ounces peel cut in thin strips ¼ inch wide (grapefruit, orange or lemon). 1 cupful sugar for sirup. ¼ cupful sugar for rolling strips. 2-3 cupful water for sirup. ¼ teaspoonful salt.

Use strips of thick, soft peel free from blemishes from bright-colored, heavy, smooth-skinned grapefruit, lemons, or oranges. Add one quart of cold water, boil for one-half hour. Repeat this process until the strips have been parboiled three times, discarding the water after each cooking. The strips should then be tender.

Dissolve the sugar in the water for the sirup, in a small saucepan, add the strips of grapefruit or orange peel, and cook rapidly for about 20 minutes, then place an asbestos mat under the pan, and continue the boiling about 20 minutes longer, or until the sirup is all absorbed by the peel. Great care must be taken at this point that the sirup does not scorch, and the strips of peel must be turned frequently. Use a fork in turning the strips and in removing them from the pan.

Place the peel on waxed paper until cool; and, using the flat side of a knife, roll the strips in granulated sugar. Let the strips dry out for an hour or two, then wrap in waxed paper, and keep in tightly-covered tin containers until used. This confection should keep in good condition for two or three weeks, if stored in a moderately-cool place.

Candied cranberries and jellied peel may both be used effectively for decorating Christmas cakes and cookies in place of cherries, citron, angelica, etc. Those who have preserved watermelon rind on hand may like to tint it green with harmless vegetable coloring, flavor it with a few drops of peppermint, and use it in combination with the red of the cranberries and the yellow jellied peel. Or the jellied peel may be colored with harmless vegetable coloring by adding a small quantity of coloring to the last water in which the peel is parboiled.

Dates stuffed with strips of grapefruit peel instead of with peanuts or almonds are interesting and new. When the date pit has been replaced by a strip of the peel, the date is closed and rolled in granulated sugar.

Use Left Over Cereals

Small amounts of left over cooked cereal sometimes present a problem to the housekeeper. She could, however, put them into bread, muffins, or griddle cakes in place of part of the flour and liquid. She could use them to thicken soups, stews, or gravies or fry them for use like a starchy dinner vegetable, or to serve with sirup for a dessert, the United States Department of Agriculture points out.

Stale cake can be made into cabinet pudding, with custard mixture and a few raisins or currants. Try drying it, rolling it into crumbs and sprinkling them through or over ice cream, whipped cream or custard desserts, says the United States Department of Agriculture.

Think It Over

No man has a right to leave the world no better than he found it. He must add something to it either he must make its people better and happier, or he must make the face of the world fairer to look at.

Uses Dynamite to Make Suicide Sure

Winnemucca, Nev.—Jack Allan, a hard-rock miner, blew himself to bits with dynamite in a downtown hotel here.

The blast was heard throughout the business section and caused a panic in the hotel, which was badly damaged.

Allan had just been discharged from a hospital, where he had been ill for months. He engaged a room, undressed, fired a fuse to the dynamite charge and then lay down on the bed, with the explosive beneath him.

"LORD ORDERED IT," IS FANATIC'S PLEA

Homeless Man Makes Sacrifice of Right Hand.

Cincinnati.—Imbued with the belief that he should carry out the Biblical injunction, "If thy right hand offend thee, cut it off," a man giving the name of Thomas Thomson, forty-eight years old and homeless, made the sacrifice. He cut off his hand and part of his arm by allowing a Pennsylvania railroad passenger train to run over him.

"The Lord told me to do it," was his explanation in the General hospital.

Persons who saw the man before and after the accident thought he had been injured when trying to steal a ride.

Thomson held his dismembered arm in his left hand as he was carried to the hospital. He said little about himself. He had $1.16 in his pockets. He told police he had a brother, John Thomson, living in Indianapolis.

Small Girls Survive Parents' Tragic Deaths

Petersburg, Alaska.—Two girls, five and three years, respectively, told federal authorities here that a moving boat, on which they were passengers, was the scene of a spectacular murder and suicide, which left them at sea adrift and alone in the craft.

The principals in the tragedy were Tom Rise and his wife. After Rise killed the woman, he threw her overboard and then jumped over the side himself.

As if guided by a providential hand, the vessel beached itself and the two little girls crawled off the ship when the tide went out and walked to a cannery, three miles up the beach near here.

The five-year-old child was adopted, and said her foster parents had been drinking before the fatal fight took place.

Gets "Thank You" for Returning Lost $14,000

Marked Tree, Ark.—Everett Davis, a resident of Marked Tree, received "thank you!" as a reward for returning to a messenger $14,000 in cash which he found in a road near here. Davis noticed a leather brief case fall from an automobile a short distance ahead of a machine he was driving. He recovered the case and chased the driver of the car from which he had seen it fall for about two miles before overtaking him. The man in the machine said he was a deputy sheriff from Memphis, and told Davis the case contained a $14,000 payroll which he was delivering to Etowah, Ark.

Six Held Prisoners by "Confidence Men"

Tampa, Fla.—Six persons, members of two families, were held prisoners for 12 days in a room in the Latin quarter by confidence men, police have discovered. The gang, during the 12 days, extorted more than $2,000 from relatives of the two families. The relatives live in Massachusetts. One of the six prisoners was a seven-week-old baby.

Mr. and Mrs. Germano Seorra and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Santos and their two children arrived in Tampa in search of homes, police said.

Maine Highway Police Wage War on Signboards

Lewiston, Me.—Signboards along the highways of Maine are to be torn down. This announcement was made by Chief Arthur H. Field of the state highway police.

The campaign will not be confined to the removal of signs within the highway limits which violate the provisions of the law passed by the last legislature. Signs at intersecting highways, whether within the limits of the highway or not, which obscure the vision of the motorist, also will be removed.

Mrs. Coolidge Prefers Old Sentimental Songs

Swampscott, Mass.—Although orchestras of the summer hotels near White Court were ready with all the latest hits, it developed that Mrs. Coolidge preferred the old songs of sentiment.

Gerald Griffin, opera singer, who was one of the theatrical delegation which called at the White House in the last campaign, stopped at White Court recently. When Mrs. Coolidge asked him to sing, he requested that she select the number, expecting something from one of the operas. She asked for "My Wild Irish Rose."

Paul's Strength Enables Him to Beat Delaney

Blow For Blow Delaney Outscored Berlenbach But the Latter's Strength Displayed in the Closing Rounds Was the Deciding Factor.

(By Davis J. Walsh.)

New York, Dec. 12.—"Be sure you're right then go ahead," said some sap who never won a boxing title.

And last night at Madison Square Garden, Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Conn., made absolutely sure that he was right and then went ahead exactly one minute sixty seconds and the sixtieth part of an hour too late.

He cocked Paul Berlenbach on the chin in the fourth round and sat the latter down. But the latter got up, contrary to their last meeting and Delaney didn't seem to know what to do about it. He was careful, sane, deliberate and unflurried.

In fact, he was too careful, too sane, too deliberate and too unflurried. While he deliberated, a rather bovine gentleman who had a glazed eye and a pair of very neighborly knees, recovered his sense of proportion, or whatever it was he needed, and simultaneously the light heavyweight championship of the world elected to ignore Bridgeport and remain in New York.

For, from the sixth round on to the fifteenth, Berlenbach bulled his way to the decision, as he of necessity must. He is less a fighter than a catch-as-can-miss wrestler but he happens to be a champion and two judges and a referee decided that he deserved to retain the honor. He did.

Round For Round Ignored.

Berlenbach did all the forcing, all the fighting. Delaney all the blocking, side-stepping and countering. In a blow for blow survey, the Bridgeport entry probably outscored Berlenbach. In the round for round returns, he quite decidedly did, by a matter of eight rounds to six with one even.

A Few Violations.

And, lest we forget, New York claims, a recently enacted law by which bouts are to be decided on a round for round basis. Also New York has another joker that calls for the disqualification of a man who goes down without being hit. New York violated both rules last night.

Berlenbach took only a short count on the floor in the fourth round. He started to get up at the count of four, but thought better of it when Dan Hickey shouted from his corner: "Take a count, take a count."

Thus admonished, he sank down on one knee and thereby violated both the spirit and the letter of the boxing code. Delaney protested to Referee Ed Purdy but the latter was looking out of the window, or something, and the business went as is.

Delaney's Big Mistake.

Then Delaney set out to finish what he started but he never did. Instead of crowding and fighting his man, he boxed with him, attempting to feint him into leaving an unexposed spot. It was an excellent idea but without tangible premiums. While Delaney was making a lot of gestures, Berlenbach took a breather and, by the time his head had thoroughly cleared, the bell rang and Delaney was through work for the night.

At that, he piled up such a lead in the early rounds that all of Berlenbach's aggressiveness and forcing was needed to swing the decision his way. Delaney simply kept his left hand in Paul's face throughout the first three rounds, took the fourth by a wide margin and carried the fifth while his man was trying to live down that punch on the jowl in the round previous.

Berlenbach's Strength Figured.

But by the sixth, Berlenbach was himself, which means that he was strong, ambitious and everlastingly determined. Delaney, meantime, seemed to have shot his bolt. It was apparent that he either isn't a long distance fighter or his recent illnesses exacted a toll that failed to show on the physical surface.

The seventh went to Delaney because the expeditious use of his left and the fact that he again crossed his right to the jaw, but this time without visible effect. Wise cracking observers were pleased to note the end of Delaney's reserve strength at this point and mayhap, for once, they were right.

The eighth was even but the ninth again saw Delaney come to the front with a series of left and right hooks. They slowed Berlenbach up about the same way that the inevitable flow of molasses is impeded by a barricade of tooth picks.

Paul Takes Finals.

Paul took the tenth on aggressiveness, Delaney carried the eleventh on boxing and then from that point, it was all Berlenbach. He had superior speed, strength and punch and proceeded to make the most of the fact. In the fourteenth he squared all accounts by doubling Jack up with a left hook to the body that almost ended the young man then and there. It didn't but it ended Delaney's chances to win the title, for had been an abiding effect in the minds of the officials as did the entire four round rally through the closing stages of the bout.

It prompted them to render a decision in favor of Berlenbach, in spite of the round for round tally, and the writer is not altogether certain that they were not justified.

As far as the eye could see, Berlenbach was the better, the stronger, the superior fighter at the weight and distance.

DEMPSEY POSITIVE HE WILL MEET WILLS.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 12.—Ray M. Cannon, Milwaukee attorney, representing the pugilist in arms for his proposed bout with Harry Mills, is coming to Los Angeles to "discuss business." Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion, declared today.

Dempsey said his bout with Harry Wills was "certainly very much on." The champion declared he did not care where he fought Wills but was positive in declaring he would meet the negro challenger "somewhere" in 1926.

Beauty spots in the English countryside are no longer to be disfigured by unsightly advertisements. For 18 years the advertisements regulation act, designed to protect landscapes from advertisements, has had a loophole which made it inoperative, but this has been stopped by an amending act which received royal assent on the last day of the recent parliamentary session.

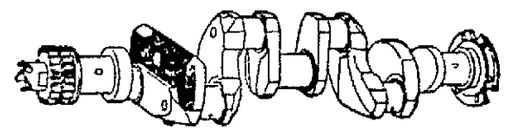
What is the Harmonic Balancer?



Why is this new Oakland feature creating such wide-spread interest? Why is it regarded as the year's outstanding advancement?

The Harmonic Balancer is an entirely new engineering development, pioneered by Oakland, and rendering the Oakland Six engine unmatched in freedom from vibration at all speeds.

This remarkable feature does not merely dampen vibration—it prevents vibration. It makes use of a simple natural law to neutralize any twisting of the crank-shaft under repeated piston impulses and thus stops torsional vibration at its very source.

But the Harmonic Balancer is not all. The new Oakland Six embodies more than 100 other improvements including Four-Wheel Brake refinements, Air Cleaner, Oil Filter, and Full Pressure Oiling System—yet prices are $70 to $350 lower.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 12—Forward price movements in the short session of the market today were confined to a small number of the industrial and specialty stocks, in contrast to which the bulk of active speculative leaders, including the motors, oils and rails, were scheduled to profit taking and moved down to slightly lower price levels. Aggressive buying continued in Allis Chalmers, American Can and Stewart Warner, as well as in a few of the low priced specialties, including Bush terminal and Davison Chemical

American Can advanced to 259 on reports that the directors this month would split the stock, five for one, and authorize a $3 annual dividend on the new stock.

Stewart Warner spurted to 91½ for a new gain of three points. Allis Chalmers gained five points in active trading. American Smelting hung up a new high record at 135½ American Water Works and other utility stocks sold fractionally higher. Foundation Company was active and strong.

Stewart Warner Allis Chalmers, Federal Light and Traction American Water Works and other speculative specialty stocks reached new peak prices in the final period. Atlantic Coast Line, at the head of the rails, reached a new high at 260.

Heavy trading in the third Liberty 4¼'s, and a moderate advance in the second grade railroad issues were the principals of the listed bond market today. The third Liberties, which are under an offer of direct purchase by the secretary of the treasury at not more than 101. Fifty sold fractionally higher at 101.7 for a total volume of more than $4,000,000 in the two hour period.

French government bonds were slightly reactionary, Italian and German government issues were steady.

Columbia Silent On Rockne Report

New York, Dec. 12.—Knute Rockne, famous Notre Dame football coach, has signed a contract to act as head mentor of football at Columbia University, despite denials from the West that he will remain with Notre Dame, it was declared here today in good authority.

Rockne has signed for three years. In 1926 he will draw a salary of $15,000, in 1927 it will be $17,500 and in 1928 he will be paid $20,000 it was asserted.

Early today the Rev. Mathew Walsh, president of Notre Dame, was quoted as saying that Rockne still has eight years of a ten year contract to serve. Rockne's closest friends in the city denies this. He believes that Father Walsh has been misquoted. Rockne has had no contract for two years, this friend disclosed today

Authorities at Columbia refused to either deny or affirm that Rockne has signed with the local institution of learning.

It is believed that they are investigating the leak whereby the signing of the famous coach became public before it was officially announced.

Heavy Eaters, Read!

A Moscow scientist claims to have discovered a "hunger center" in the brain, which controls the appetite, and which proves that hunger is not in the stomach but in the head. He states that an injury to this "center" may create an abnormal appetite, or it may kill any desire for food.

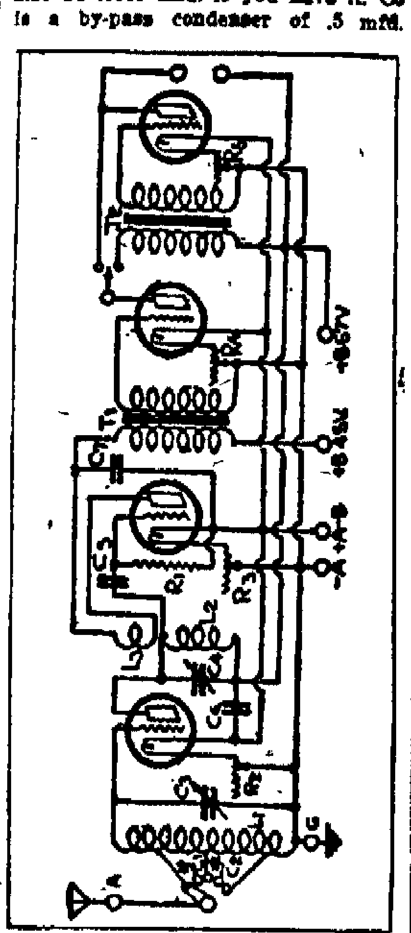
British Hook-Up Is Far-Reaching

Fan Claims to Receive Canadian and American Stations With Set.

A British fan who claims he has received Canadian and American stations consistently submits the accompanying hook-up. Here is the list of values for the various parts used in this circuit.

If the builder has two variable condensers of .00025 mfd. capacity for use as C3 and C4, the coils L1 and L2 should contain 90 turns of No. 22 dcc. or 82 turns of No. 24 dcc. wire if wound on 3-inch tubing. If the condensers available are .00035 mfd. the coils should contain 70 turns of No. 22 dcc. or 66 turns of No. 24 dcc. on this same size tubing. Should the condensers be of the .0005 mfd. size, the coils are to have either 56 turns of No. 22 dcc. or 51 turns of No. 24 dcc. wire on 3-inch tubes.

The fixed condensers C1 and C2 are to be of .00025 mfd. capacity, as is condenser C5. This latter unit may also be .0005 mfd. if you have it. C6 is a by-pass condenser of .5 mfd.



British Fan Submits This Long Range Hook-Up.

capacity and C7 is another of .001 mfd. or .002 mfd. capacity. The tickler L3 will contain from 20 to 40 turns, depending on the size tubing used and the coil (among those listed above) with which it is to be used.

The grid leak R1 should preferably be variable, but if of the cartridge type, will be between 8 and 5 megohms, depending on the tube used as detector. R2, R3, R4 and R5 are each 30-ohm rheostats. When choosing the audio frequency transformers T1 and T2, use care not to get two of too high a ratio nor two of too low a ratio. For example you could have the first be a 6 to 1 and the second 2 to 1, or you could have both be 4 to 1 or 3½ to 1. Both should not be 6 to 1 or 2 to 1. You can use either the 201A or the 199 tubes: the antenna can be of any length between a 40-foot indoor and a 110-foot outdoor installation. You do not necessarily have to use tube-wound coils; space-wound, spider-web, basket-weave, honeycomb or bank-wound inductances may be employed.

Things to Know About Building and Operating

To remedy a broad-tuning radio-frequency set, try disconnecting the ground wire and inserting a wave trap before changing the coupling of the coils or moving them in relation to the condensers. The trap can be made of 50 turns of No. 22 DCC wire wound on a 3½-inch tube, shunted with a .0005 mfd. variable condenser and placed in inductive relation to the aerial lead-in.

When signals are "mushy," clear them up by connecting across the secondary of the audio transformer a fixed condenser of a capacity to be determined by experiment. To compensate for the resulting reduction in volume use an extra 22½-volt "B" battery.

If you switch from 201 "A" to 199 tubes and still want to use the 6-volt storage battery, try a 30-ohm rheostat as the resistance.

The phone cord with the colored thread through it should be connected to the prong of the jack leading to the "B" battery voltage.

A regenerative set may often be improved by connecting the phone bypass condenser from the plate terminal on the socket to the positive "A" battery terminal, instead of across the phone posts. By doing this the radio-frequency currents are offered a shorter path and do not have to pass through the "B" battery, which offers a high resistance.

Because of the high cost of different sizes of drills, holes can be cut to any width by means of a standard taper reamer, which costs less than a dollar. Drill the holes with an ordinary ⅛-inch twist drill, then insert the reamer in a bit brace and turn it in the hole. It will cut its way through the panel quickly. No chipped or marred edges will result, and the holes are clean and smooth.

Alumni Minstrel Here on Dec. 26

Once more the high school auditorium will resound with the songs and merry making of the "old-timers." A minstrel show will be held on Saturday, December 26 by the graduates of K. A. and U. A. and alumni, faculty and students of K. H. S. The show is being looked forward to with anticipations of a general good time and alumni reunion.

Immediately after the performance, there will be dancing in the gym until 11:45. As the old ruling, that no one may dance except graduates and students of K. A., U. A. and K. H. S., is still in effect, any others wishing to dance must obtain permission from Principal Van Ingen beforehand.

On Tuesday, there was a short rehearsal of the songs, which include all popular numbers of today. The end men, George Allen, Bob Ac[illegible], Bill Newkirk, John Palisi, Jim Winters and Bill Murray have been holding secret meetings and acting very mysteriously. They have all been in past minstrel shows and are well known about town.

Roger Gibson, the manager of the show has been making all the arrangements he possibly can to insure a wholesome good time for all.

Tickets may be purchased at the Safford and Scudder store on Wall street, O'Reilly's on Broadway, Murphy's on the Strand or from any member of the cast or the A. A. Council.

Mrs. Cady Talks About Palestine

Describes Ancient City and Oldest Christian Church in Existence at Meeting of Y. M. C. A. Woman's Auxiliary—Other Interesting Features.

The December meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. was held on Friday at 3 p. m. at the "Y". The devotional was in charge of Mrs. E. N. Snow and partook of the Christmas season.

After the business meeting a very pleasing program was rendered by Mrs. Putnam Cady and Miss Lucinda Merritt. Mrs. Cady beautifully sang the numbers, "Morning," by Oley Speaks, and "Under the Stars," an old Christmas carol. Miss Merritt gave a humorous reading entitled "The Inventor's Wife," after which she read very feelingly, "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear," while Mrs. Cady played the carol upon the piano.

Mrs. Cady gave a very interesting account of her visit to Bethlehem. She recommended Margaret Slattery's book, "Old Paths in New Palestine" to all. She explained that Bethlehem is just six miles from Jerusalem and like all Oriental cities is built on a hill top for protection, and is so densely populated one cannot take a true census of it. Bethlehem and Nazareth, the two places connected with life of Christ, are the two cleanest cities in Palestine. Just outside of Bethlehem, Mrs. Cady visited the Shepherd's field, where shepherds watched their flocks the night Christ was born. She described shepherds she had seen, who love their flocks and always lead, never drive them. The goats, black in color, are herded with the sheep. She saw one shepherd carrying a tiny black kid on one shoulder and a snow white lamb on the other. Bethlehem is a Christian city, its inhabitants being mainly of the Greek or Armenian Catholic faith. The women and children are friendly and cordial in their greetings. The Church of the Nativity, the oldest Christian Church in the world, is the center of attraction, built upon the supposed spot where the manger stood in which Christ was laid at birth.

The door of the church is built so low she said, that one has to stoop to enter, this being done to prevent the Turks from riding right into and through the church as was their habit. In the basement, to mark the spot where the manger stood, is a grotto with a silver star set in the Mosaic pavement and from the ceiling hang many gold and silver lamps, burning all the time. The chief occupation in Bethlehem is the manufacture of mother of pearl ornaments, some of which Mrs. Cady had on exhibition. She also exhibited a china headed doll dressed as the women of Bethlehem dressed in the time of Christ and still dress. Fashions never change and each city and village of Palestine has its own distinctive dress by which its people may be known.

Mrs. Cady exhorted all to try to realize amid the joys and festivities of the holiday season, the real meaning of Christmas and the first Christmas gift which brought light and salvation to a world of darkness. She read in closing Charles M. Sheldon's "My Room at the Inn."

Refreshments were served and all invited to inspect the new lunch room which was very attractive with its cheerful draperies, window boxes, flower and tables with their spotless linens. A number of the members brought guests.

St. Joseph's Beat St. Mary's Quint

The St. Joseph's-St. Mary's basketball battle on the latter's court Friday evening, resulting in the first defeat for the downtown Saints was one of the most lively, exciting and thrilling contests staged on the court in some time. The final score of the clean and hard fought struggle was 19 to 17.

The exhibition displayed by the teams would do credit to senior quintets. A superior brand of passwork, together with the pretty floor work displayed by Merritt was responsible for the success of the uptown Saints.

Hoffman, for the winners, took the scoring honors with five "free" baskets and a couple of deuces, totalling nine.

Noble's work for the losers, with the exceptionally good shooting of Joyce was the big factors in keeping the contest nip and tuck throughout.

Historical Heroine

Beatrice Cenci was the daughter of a Roman patrician. She was born in Rome February 12, 1577. Her father for many years abused his wife and family in the most cruel way and as a result the family procured his murder. They were tried and sentenced to death. Beatrice was executed September 11, 1599. The circumstances of her life have long caused her to be considered a martyr and her history has been the theme of several poems.

Grange Enjoys First Real Rest

Detroit, Dec. 12.—With his arm swathed tightly in bandages to keep down the swelling Harold "Red" Grange, football's most famous representative and the Pierpont Morgan of modern gridironists, enjoyed his first real day of rest since starting the most strenuous program ever attempted by a professional athlete.

Red spent the day on the train—a tiresome job normally but a welcome one to the man who had been almost constantly harassed by crowds and throngs that denied him the least bit of rest and peace throughout a hectic week of barnstorming that sapped and tore even at his remarkable vitality. Grange, one of the nerviest youngster who ever donned moleskins, insisted he will be able to play again on Sunday when the Bears are scheduled to meet the New York Giants in Chicago.

Once the Sunday game is out of the way Grange's problem will be considerably simplified. Thereafter he will have no more than two games a week up to and including the Florida trip.

ERNIE NEVERS ALSO TURNS PROFESSIONAL.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 12.—Ernie Nevers, Stanford football captain and chosen by not a few as All-American football back this year, today is pointed toward the "big money" to be gained as a professional football player.

Nevers, who has signed a contract with a group of Florida capitalists, will play with a team which will represent Jacksonville, Fla., and will draw down $50,000 for a series of games to be played against "Red" Grange and his Chicago Bears in Florida and California. Nevers's team will also meet other aggregations, it was announced.

Nevers, like Grange, said he was accepting the football contract so he could repay his parents for their sacrifices in sending him through school and college.

Ladies' Night at Game Wednesday

"Ladies' night" will be in order at the armory, Wednesday evening next when the Kingston team of the Tri-County League plays the Middletown quintet Ladies desiring to see the basketball game and to enjoy the dancing after the game will be given an opportunity at a price hardly worth mentioning.

Manager Spalt, in order to prove that the games are worth while viewing and that the dancing is enjoyable, has designated Wednesday of next week as "Ladies' night." The local manager has arranged to distribute tickets to the ladies of the city. The tickets may be had by any lady who so wishes and upon presentation at the box office on Wednesday the bearer will be admitted at very small fee.

The special tickets will be given out at the Connelly drug store on lower Broadway and at O'Reilly's, central Broadway.

The response of local supporters in purchasing season tickets has been good, but a large number still remains to be disposed of. The tickets may be secured frm Manager Spalt or at the box office on Wednesday night.

Local High Quintet Unable to Shoot Baskets From Scrimmage Drops First League Game to Bridge City Five.

A team that can drop but two field baskets through the rings during an entire game can hardly hope to win a basketball game, nor did the Kingston High School court squad traveling at this rate obtain much revenge for past football defeats from Poughkeepsie High School in the enemy city Friday afternoon. The final score read: Poughkeepsie, 19; Kingston, 12.

The local school aggregation steered the leather between the irons for two pointers but twice, both these doubles being made by Sahloff, making one each in the first two periods. The balance of the Maroon and White markers were made from the penalty strip, the Kingston lads taking advantage of eight fouls.

Sahloff started the point making of the affair with a foul at the opening of the game, after which Vogel followed with another single marker. Howell soon tied things up with a double. Then toward the latter part of the period Sahloff pulled through with his first double and Kingston ended the first quarter in front by a 4-2 score. Poughkeepsie made five markers to the local's two in the second period, making the score at half time 7 to 6 in the Bridge City team's favor. Sahloff's double in this period was the local's last two pointer of the affair.

Blue and white markers began to drift through the rings twice as often as the locals' pointers this latter half, the enemy making twelve points to Kingston's six the final periods. While the locals made all their points from fifteen foot line in the late portions of the affair, the Poughkeepsieians scored but four points from this source, registering the balance of their points, eight markers, from field tactics.

The first varsity to take the floor remained in the fray until the second time when a fresh group went into the combat. This latter aggregation battled the Blue and White until the third period was about half completed, after which the first outfit took up the colors again and played until the final whistle.

The Kingston lads had an unusually difficult time in finding the loops in comparison with the Poughkeepsians who came through seven times during the affair with two pointers. The Kingstonians very seldom were successful in penetrating the Poughkeepsie defense.

GRANGE IS POPULAR WITH THE FAIR SEX.

Detroit, Dec. 12.—Red Grange may have been booed by some of the fans who have watched his play but he certainly has lost none of his popularity with the fair sex. The famous red head gets more mail than a movie queen, and included in the lot are letters from hero worshipping girls that roll in at the rate of about 150 a day.

Nothing shy about these young women either. They suggest dates and parties—they naively propose marriage and some of them insist that a little loan wouldn't come amiss to tide them over bitter days. None of these reach Red's eyes. They are read by his manager or companion and then consigned to the waste basket.

IRISH-AMERICANS PLAY CHICHESTER TONIGHT

It is expected that the largest crowd that has turned out on the Chichester court this season will witness the Irish-Americans and the Chichester aggregation battle this evening on the mountain team's court.

The Irish-Americans of this city although having played top notch ball all season expect a big task on their hands tonight. The Chichester club were a strong aggregation last season and gave the locals many stiff contests. Tonight's battle will make the local's first chance to measure the mountaineer's strength yet this season.

Manager Lamphier of the Irish-Americans will pick his line-up from the following men: Hoffman, Vogt, DuBois, Scheffel, O'Reilly, Joyce, Cahill and Clark.
